

U. S. Says Rebels Constantly Violate Cease-Fire in Laos

Charges Raise Grave Questions On Future of Huge Meeting

GENEVA (AP) — The United States charged today the Communist-led Pathet Lao rebels are engaging in a systematic violation of the cease-fire in Laos.

A statement issued by the American delegation to the 14-nation conference on Laos here said there had been "at least 30 breaches of the cease-fire by Pathet Lao forces" between May 13 and Friday.

"Some of the violations were isolated incidents, but many reflect a pattern of premeditation," the statement added.

Deaths Mount Slowly as Long Holiday Starts

4 State Persons Killed at Opening Of Weekend

Traffic deaths mounted slowly as motorists took to the road in the early hours of a weekend which for some would extend through Tuesday's Memorial Day holiday.

Adding to normal travel are those who for various reasons can include Monday to make the period a four-day weekend.

The weather refused to cooperate with those planning spring outings, however, and spread unseasonable cold temperatures over much of the nation.

No Estimate

The National Safety Council made no estimate of highway fatalities for the four-day period but said extraordinary travel on Memorial Day alone could produce 100 deaths, 30 more than the average on a non-holiday Tuesday.

A nationwide Associated Press survey, made for comparative purposes covering the 102 hour period from 6 p.m. Friday May 12 to Tuesday, May 16, counted 341 traffic deaths, 14 boating fatalities, 78 drownings and 106 miscellaneous for a total of 537.

The Council said traffic fatalities would average 385 over a non-holiday 102 hour period.

Four Killed

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents as Wisconsin observed the opening of the Memorial Day weekend.

The deaths raised the state's highway toll for the year to 238 compared with 276 on the same day one year ago.

A head-on collision in Ashland County early today took the lives of Art Besse, well known Ashland real estate dealer and former northern Wisconsin educator, and Ray Thurn of Chicago.

Cars driven by Besse and Thurn collided on Highway 13 about four miles north of Chidden Besse was alone in his vehicle. Thurn's two passengers were hospitalized at Ashland.

Killed at 7 p.m. Friday were John Sertich, 45, of Route 1, Saukville, and Mrs. Ruth Heindorf, 57, of Route 1, Grafton. The crash occurred on a long curve on Highway 57 about a mile south of Granton.

FHA Mortgage Interest Rate Will be Lowered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Effective Monday, the interest rate on new FHA-insured home loans will be 5 1/2 per cent.

President Kennedy yesterday ordered the second 1/4 per cent reduction in three months and announced other moves to stimulate the home mortgage market and the construction industry and roll interest rates back from levels he regards as "unrealistic."

To the future home buyer, the two 1/4 per cent reductions from the old FHA rate of 5 3/4 per cent will mean a $4.47 monthly saving on a 20-year $15,000 loan. The White House said payments for principal, interest and FHA insurance premium on such a loan will come to $65.59 a month, in place of $90.06.

Freedom Rider James Zwerg Returns Home

Student Plans to Work for Appleton Street Department

James Zwerg, 21-year-old "Freedom Rider" beaten in Montgomery, Ala., last Saturday, arrived home Friday afternoon, convinced that the cause of brotherhood has been served.

The young pre-theological student, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Zwerg, 630 Riverview Lane, left St. Jude Hospital in Montgomery Thursday morning and, with an FBI escort, went immediately to the airport and flew to Nashville, Tenn. He was accompanied by the Rev. Richard Schroeder, associate pastor of First Congregational Church, who flew to Montgomery Tuesday "on a pastoral call on one of my church members."

Met at Airport

Zwerg was met by his father and brother, Charles, 24, at Winnebago County Airport in Oshkosh. The Beloit College student on exchange at Fisk University, Nashville, said he has no specific plans for the future except to make up examinations he has missed and to get back to his summer-time job with the Appleton Street Department. He has worked for the city for the last two summers.

Zwerg and the Rev. Mr. Schroeder were high in their praise of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. They said the Alabama National Guard had warned them they needed protection on their trip from the hospital to the airport, but the Guard "disappeared" and the FBI escorted them one agent rode in the car with the minister and Zwerg. Two others followed in a car behind. There were no incidents.

Three to Die For Invasion

Anti-Castro Forces Condemned for Killing Official

KEY WEST Fla. (AP) — Three members of the anti-Castro forces that attempted to invade Cuba last month have been condemned to death, Havana Radio reported today.

It was the first report of death sentences for any of the captured invaders since the assault on Cuba April 17.

The three were convicted of having killed Juan Manuel Marquez, one of the early supporters of Prime Minister Fidel Castro who fought with him in the Sierra Maestra.

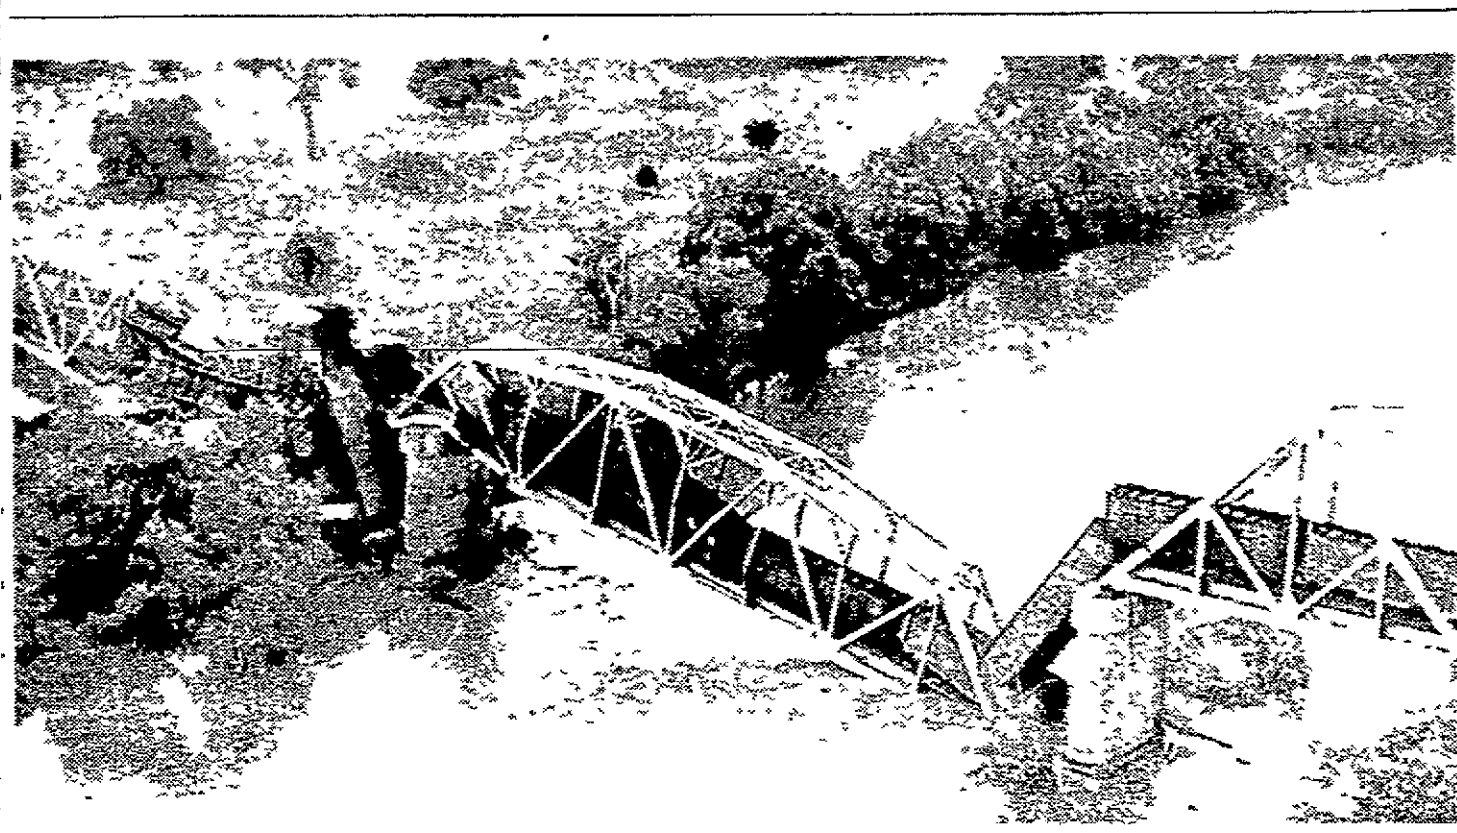

The broadcast also said the three whose names were not given, had been members of the army of ex-dictator Fulgencio Batista whom Castro overthrew.

Against this background the radio also reported continued anti-Castro sabotage. It said that "criminal sabotage" had caused a fire in a warehouse that consumed 1,000 bales of tobacco worth $120,000.

Five of the first six launchings of the improved missile failed. The trouble was traced to a faulty hydraulics system. The system was modified and on May 12 an Atlas successfully flew the course.

The E rocket, which features a built-in inertial guidance system and more powerful engines than the operational D Atlas, is being developed to deliver a nuclear warhead to targets up to 10,000 miles away.

Negroes Plan to Wage Hunger Strike at Jail

Thirty-Six Cars of a Southern Pacific freight train left the tracks and heavily damaged this bridge crossing the Colorado River near West Point, Tex., Friday. District Superintendent J. W. Kraemer said officials at the scene blamed the mishap on a load of steel which shifted and struck the bridge as the 93 car train moved across the river. There were no injuries reported.

6 Whites Arrested

MONTGOMERY (AP) — Six white teenagers have been arrested for the shooting of a Negro integration leader, state and county authorities announced today.

A prepared statement by Adjutant General Henry V. Graham said the boys, all 16 or 17 years old, have been charged with shooting the Rev. Solomon S. Seay Sr., in front of his home Thursday. Their names were not released.

Graham, speaking also for the sheriff's office and state criminal investigators, said the investigation showed Seay was slightly wounded by a pellet gun fired by one of the six boys.

Kennedy Signs $500 Million Latin America Aid Bill

Measure Aimed at Stronger, More Prosperous Hemisphere

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today signed a bill providing a special $500 million Latin American aid fund. He said it was aimed at building a "stronger and more prosperous hemisphere."

The bill also sets up a $100 million fund to help Chile rebuild from the 1960 earthquakes that devastated its southern region.

Kennedy signed the appropriation bill in the presence of congressional leaders, representatives of the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Development Bank.

Former president Harry S. Truman who had a later appointment with the president, also watched the ceremony and received one of the 18 pens Kennedy used.

Kennedy said it was a source of satisfaction to him and the United States that this country is now able to make a substantial contribution to social development in Latin America.

He stressed that the aid will be a part of a great effort by nations which are willing to take the necessary steps to assure a better life for the people in the hemisphere.

Kennedy has made the aid plan a keynote of his "alliance for progress" plan to speed Latin American development.

92-Year-Old Fights Thieves, Learns Lesson

CANOGA PARK, Calif. (AP) — When two thugs waved razors at him and demanded his money, 92-year-old Cyrus C. Davis fought them for it.

He had exactly $2. They took it — and left him for dead in an alley, his throat cut in four places.

Davis lay there, bleeding, for five hours. Then his son, Billy, a policeman, found him. He had been searching for the missing man for hours.

Doctors took 54 stitches in the wounds. They said he had lost perhaps five pints of blood. They held little hope for his recovery.

That was six days ago. Today Davis is back in his Canoga Park home, sitting up and groaning mostly because doctors won't let him smoke his old quota of three cigars a day.

Stamina, said Davis, "A line of hard work. And a little nap now and then."

SUPERIOR—Jittery and frightened but "ready to be hanged," William F. Wipson, suspected of three brutal murders, was apprehended Friday after an intensive 11-day hunt.

The arrest and imprisonment of the 41-year-old former mental patient brought calm to this beleaguered community which has been keenly aware of Wipson's reputation as a criminally insane, brutal killer and of his presence in the area.

Wipson was captured in Cloquet, Minn., a community of about 9,000 about 29 miles from here. He told arresting officers, "I am tired of running. I am glad to be caught. I am ready to be hanged."

His capture was made by Sgt. Lou Weedman and Patrolman Louis Lisogni of the Cloquet Police Department. He gave them a fictitious name but offered no resistance.

Held in Jail

Wipson is being held in St. Louis County Jail in Duluth under a federal warrant charging flight to avoid prosecution on a charge of murder.

Still to be determined is extradition to Wisconsin where he is wanted for the bludgeoning of Benjamin Hucosky, 51, Superior, or extradition to Illinois where he is sought for the double murder of Mrs. Wilbur Davis.

The legal action in Jackson, Miss., apparently had little effect on the determination of Negro leaders however. Statements issued in a number of cities indicated a stepped-up campaign was being planned with more riders expected to head South shortly.

The 27 convicted of breach of the peace in Jackson elected to remain in jail, at least for the present rather than post bond or pay fines.

Suspended Jail

City Judge James Spencer told the riders their conduct "flagrant disobedience of the law" shortly before.

U.N. Forces Kill Kasai Men in Congo Town

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (UPI) — The United Nations reported today that Ghanaian troops of the U.N. force killed four South Kasai soldiers in a sharp firefight near the Congo town of Mutamba.

A spokesman said the South Kasai troops were attacking rival Lunda tribesmen working at the local airfield when the U.N. forces intervened.

The Kalonji troops finally retreated with their wounded, leaving the four dead behind. No Ghanaian casualties were reported.

The Ghanaian U.N. troops had been rushed into the area earlier this week following a sharp outbreak of fighting between Kalonji's troops and rival tribesmen in the diamond-rich South Kasai province.

It was disclosed earlier that Gen. Indarut Rikinye, military adviser to U.N. Secy General Dag Hammarskjöld, abruptly interrupted a tour of the Congo Friday and headed without explanation for New York.

Conductors will rehearse and direct the Peninsula Festival Orchestra, attend classes in baton technique, and receive individual tutoring with Dr. Johnson and the symposium staff.

Internationally celebrated as a concert harpist, Grandjany is the conductor of the national harp master class for advanced harpists. He has been on the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music in New York City since 1938. He will be assisted by Margaret Rupp Cooper, Madison, one of the leaders in harp instruction in the Midwest.

Opera fellows will study under Prof. Robert Gay of Northwestern University and Dr. Thor Johnson, conductor of the Peninsula Festival Orchestra. Harry B. McColligan will assist with scenery and lighting and E. Rogers Cleary will help with costumes and makeup.

Wide Background

Gay has taught at Boston University, and at the Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood). He has performed as leading baritone with the Philadelphia Opera Company and the New England Opera Theater, and as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Last 'This Is Your Life' Show Runs June 18

Popular Program Has 11-Year History With Ralph Edwards

BY BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Ralph Edwards does his final "This Is Your Life" show next month, the subject will not be new.

"I have a simple way to prevent it," says Edwards. "I have told my staff the day after it happens, they're all fired."

June 18 will bring the end of an 11-year history, two on radio, 82 on TV, of "This Is Your Life." I called on Ralph in his luxurious Hollywood Boulevard office for a pre-mortem talk.

"Naturally I'm sorry it's going off," he remarked. "I can't quite understand why NBC is dropping it; the network still has to pay for us for one more season under the contract."

"But we're not standing still. We'll still have 16 half-hours of shows on the network—Truth or Consequences, 'It Could Be You' and 'About Faces' in the land are under plow and there daytime. And now 'It Could Be You' will also be going into the former reservation. There are homemaker groups, 4-H clubs and health programs all dedicated to make this new county one of Wisconsin's most successful ventures in good government, they say. A saw mill and manufacturing plant at Neopit provide stable employment."

Memorable Shows
I asked Ralph to pick the five most memorable of his shows and he replied thusly (not necessarily in order):

1. Dr. Laurence C. Jones, the "Little Professor of Piney Woods" for whom viewers contributed a million dollars to endow his school for Negroes in Mississippi.

2. Lillian Roth, whom "the American public gave a helping hand" in her fight with alcoholism.

3. Darlene Miller, oldest of five Iowa orphans who stuck together after their parents died. Ralph remembers her because she got stuck on the freeway and arrived three minutes before the show was over.

4. Lowell Thomas, whose caustic comments provided front-page publicity and "the most humorous show ever on TV."

5. "At least 100 of the 400 people we have done, a great cross-section of the American People."

State Stations To Salute Indian County on June 7

Wisconsin's 72nd county — Menominee — will be saluted on the Wisconsin State Broadcasting Service's Homemakers Program at 10 a.m. Wednesday, June 7.

In a remote broadcast from the former Menominee Indian Agency headquarters in Keshena, Alne Hazzard, director of the state stations' Homemakers Program, will introduce County Agent William Bennett and Home Agent Kathleen Finley. They will explain the adjustments necessary for Wisconsin's new county.

The Menominee Indian reservation became Menominee County May 1. This all-Indian county consists of 234,000 acres of land, with 10 townships and some 82 lakes. The federal government has made legal surveys, but no definite land policy has been set up as yet. The present system is one of land leasing until a corporation is set up.

According to County Agent Bennett and Home Agent Finley, there is every reason to believe that the new county can be self-supporting with a corporation of the residents managing the lake here. We'll still have 16 half-hours of shows on the network—Truth or Consequences, 'It Could Be You' and 'About Faces' in the land are under plow and there daytime. Thief Adds Insult To Injury fore he imposed $200 fines and 60-day jail terms Friday. But he suspended the jail terms at the request of the prosecution.

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — During his Sunday morning radio sermon, Dr. J. White Iddings appealed for the return of items stolen from the First Lutheran Church educational building.

While he was speaking, a thief took a billfold from the choir room.

Integration Leaders To Intensify Rides

Defense Attorney Wiley Brandon of Little Rock, Ark., contended officers herded the 27 into a waiting room for white persons when they arrived from Montgomery.

At Little Rock, the school board announced plans to desegregate four junior high schools and the city's last remaining all-white high school, Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus termed the action a "surrender by degrees to the NAACP."

The municipal golf course at Charleston, S. C., was desegregated for the first time under a federal court order. Negroes and white persons, playing separately, used the course without incident.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, in a Voice of America broadcast at Washington, said the United States is moving so fast in race relations that a Negro could be president in 40 years.

Plan Fast

The chaplain at Yale University and four others from Eastern colleges were released under $1,000 cash bond each and flew to New York, explaining final exams begin next week.

"Those who remain in jail, beginning with the evening meal, have planned to start a fast which will continue until he is allowed to call his wife," Smith said.

The Rev. William S. Coffin Jr., the Yale chaplain, termed the arrests completely illegal. He also said a Yale faculty member sent down $7,000 for use as bond money, but declined to name the faculty member.

Also released on bond were the Rev. Gaylord B. Boyce, assistant professor of religion at Yale; Dr. David E. Swift, professor of religion at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.; and Dr. John Maguire, assistant professor of religion at Wesleyan.

No Letup

Meanwhile, there was every indication that there would be no letup in the rides and their objective of ending travel discrimination.

In New York, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged Negro students to defy segregation when clerk for the Town of Brothertown, traveling through the South on their summer vacations.

Marvin Rich, director of community relations for the Congress for Racial Equality, told a newsman in New York the rides are a step of a Negro drive to Church, Charlesburg.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, in a Voice of America broadcast at Washington, said the United States is moving so fast in race relations that a Negro could be president in 40 years.

The agreement stipulated that the United States will supply 20,000 tons of wheat and invest the proceeds of Egyptian development projects.

The agreement was signed here by U. S. charge d'affaires Norbert Anschutz and UAR Economy Minister Abdel Monem El Kaissouny.

Grandmother Gets Degree With Honors

BY ED WILKS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Grandma had her long-awaited college diploma today.

Thirty-six years ago she eloped, just six weeks before she would have been graduated from high school. Then came 7 children and 16 grandchildren, and the chores of a 700-acre, 130-cow dairy farm.

But then Marguerite B. Maxfield, 53, of North Hartland, Vt., put aside children and farm, passed a high school equivalency test and for two years attended Albany Junior College.

She was graduated with honors Friday night—the top student in the college's general business branch.

"Trim, Modern"

Dean Edward Sabol described Mrs. Maxfield as a "trim, modern grandmother and a very serious student."

Mrs. Maxfield, who roomed in Albany and journeyed about 100 miles to the farm weekends, said she studied business administration to become "more adept in the management end of the farm."

Her sons, Robert and Louis, have been running the farm.

Mrs. Maxfield's advice to other grandmothers: Go to college and pursue new careers.

Her immediate plan, she said, is to spend several months in South America to improve her Spanish, then return to the farm.

17-Pound Tamale Sent To Kennedy Is Lost, White House Reports

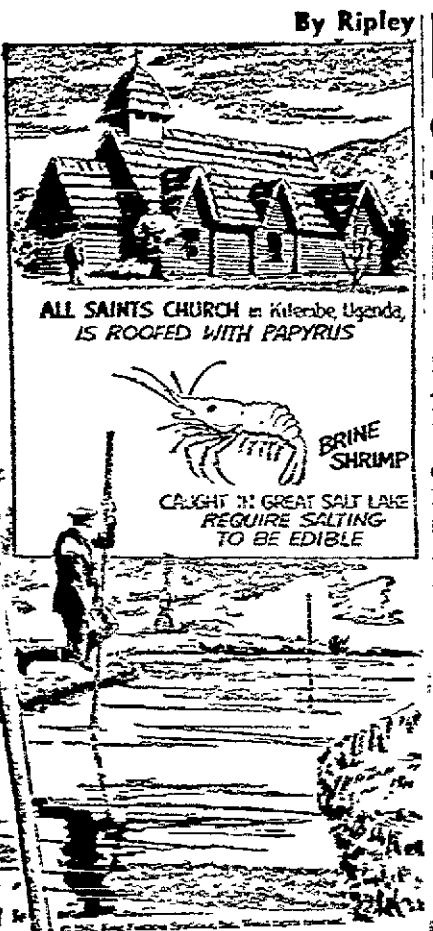

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The giant tamale sent to President Kennedy has gone astray.

That takes quite a bit of doing, since the presence of a tamale can be detected at considerable distance.

A San Antonio civic club loaded the 17-pound delicacy into an armored car and sent it to catch a plane Thursday for Washington.

Reporters inquired about the AWOL tamale Friday and the White House in Washington made a check. At length it reported no trace of the gift could be found at any office where it might have been delivered.

Strictly Bedroom Town

New Arizona Village Bans Business Places

PARADISE VALLEY, Ariz. (AP)—Would you like to live in a town where your streets aren't spotted with stores? Then Arizona's newest community, Paradise Valley, is for you. But you'd better be rich.

Incorporated just three days ago, it is probably the only community in the Southwest where you have to leave town to buy a loaf of bread, a tooth brush or a car.

The several hundred residents have practically taken a blood oath to keep it that way. You don't have far to drive, however, to find a town where you can buy a loaf of bread, a tooth brush or a car.

The residents even turned down a gift offer for a town hall in the state.

The mayor explained that meetings are held at a different home each time one is necessary. "As long as we can move around a little and save $200 or $300 a month, we're better off," he said, adding, "taxes are a mile has a mayor, marshal, dirty word around here."

is 57, and her grandnephew, James Lawson, 5, in Springfield, May 25.

The penalty in Illinois for first degree murder is electrocution. In Wisconsin it is life imprisonment. Hucovski confessed the slaying of Hucovski "because he laughed at me," authorities quoted.

He did not remember the double killing in Illinois, he said. Stole Coveralls

At the time of his capture in Cloquet he was wearing the coveralls which were missing from the railroad yard shanty in eastern Superior. He had 43 cents, some sweet rolls and an electric razor which he did not remember.

He was in pretty bad shape, said Cloquet Police Chief Ervin Adamscheck. "He was tired and hungry. He had slept in the woods last night somewhere near Superior, but he did not remember how he reached Cloquet. He said he walked here and he also said he came here on a bus. He was very high strung and jittery, but he was quiet."

Wipson was apprehended after he was recognized by a Cloquet implement dealer, Gerald Kuhl.

Recognized from Picture

"I was positive it was him," Kuhl said. "I recognized him from a picture circulated by Cloquet police, and I telephoned immediately."

The implement dealer called at 3:45 p.m. He was not found immediately. The arrest was made at 4:30.

Wipson's apprehension followed one of the most intensive man-

Plan Dinner For Kennedy

Party Brass to Show Unity Before Trip to Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 6,000 Democrats rally tonight behind President Kennedy, under attack from Republicans for his support of the tractor trade and for new spending proposals.

Kennedy himself had top billing at the $100-a-plate dinner celebrating his 44th birthday two days early. The sale of 6,000 tickets promised a sizable reduction of the party's $2 million debt.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., former President Harry S. Truman and other party notables are to speak on a program to emphasize that Democrats are united behind Kennedy in advance of his trip to Europe next week.

Kennedy leaves after the dinner for his Hyannisport, Mass., summer home. From there he will go to Boston Monday night for another birthday dinner. Returning to Hyannisport, he will fly to New York Tuesday to speak that night at a Cancer Fund dinner.

Tuesday night, accompanied by Mrs. Kennedy, he will fly to Paris for conferences with President Charles de Gaulle. From there he will go to Vienna for informal talks June 3-4 with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Kennedys will fly to London June 5, where they will meet the queen and Kennedy will talk with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The Democratic National Committee arranged to get reports from Chairman John M. Bailey and other party workers at a mid-day session in advance of tonight's dinner. Bailey announced he would call for appointment of a committee to begin consideration of a site and date for the party's 1964 convention.

Telephone calls. Hundreds telephoned to report seeing the fugitive and to ask if he had yet been apprehended.

"It's been a bad time for us all," said the officer, "But now it's over."

People Were Scared

The 11-day all-out manhunt came to a peak Thursday when a 100-man posse and two bloodhounds searched the swamps near here in pursuit of the fugitive. Hundreds of curious citizens watched the hunt, but children were kept in or near their homes and few people walked alone at night.

"I am glad it's over," said a Superior policeman. "People were scared and jumpy and they were driving us nuts with their

The beautiful 1961 Plymouth, shown in the photo above, would be right at home in your garage. claim the men at Laux Motors — and they really ought to know because Laux Motors has been selling Chrysler cars for almost a quarter of a century.

The 1961 Plymouth has a reduced rear mass, longer hood and a minimum of side trim to give it a clean, uncluttered design. Front fender sculpturing sweeps down over the head lamps to the center of the grille, and then reverses to meet the inner portion of the head lamps.

The forward-thrusting aluminum grill extends above the head lamp eyebrows. The separate, bomb-type head lamps are slightly canted to complement the fender sculpturing. The hood has a sculptured ridge along its center.

Plymouth for 1961 offers 26 different models, five engines, four transmissions and 14 body colors and 30 two-tone body color combinations. The new Plymouth has proved to be one of the most popular models on the road today. Cloudy Outlook Predicted for Control of Highway Billboards

Court Upheld First Wisconsin Measure Regulating Signs on Interstate Roads

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The outlook for highway billboard control, a fertile topic for debate in Wisconsin politics and on the floor of the legislature for years, remains cloudy although the billboard regulation champions are making some progress.

The first Wisconsin enactment of a billboard regulation act in 1959, covering the Wisconsin mileage of the U. S. interstate highway system and representing a pioneering achievement in its field in the country, has survived a round of a legal fight in Dane County circuit court.

But the billboard interests are regarded as sure to appeal the lower court decision to the state supreme court, which means that it will be at least six months and perhaps a year before the state highway department can start applying its terms—even if it is held to be valid under the state constitution.

Control Act

Meanwhile, the prospects for a supplementary control act that would apply to many thousands of miles of rural roads on the state trunk highway system appear dubious in the state legislature.

The control advocates won a significant ally when Gov. Gaylord Nelson made billboard regulation a part of his personal political program. The governor's espousal of such legislation in effect made it party policy for his Democratic party.

But the Democrats are in the minority in the current legislature, and the Republican-controlled assembly highway committee which is now reviewing the governor's state trunk zoning bill has shown little enthusiasm for it.

The expected coalition of public supporters for the measure has all but failed to develop, and at the public hearing on the bill recently the billboard interests requested and were granted time to try to work out agreeable amendments with members of Gov. Nelson's staff.

No Bill Likely

Because the legislature is unlikely to remain in session beyond the first week in July, the chances for enactment of a general billboard control bill are not regarded as optimistic.

Billboard control is difficult politically because of the variety of economic interests that fear they may be adversely affected. The billboard companies, as such, usually furnish the leadership, but their political backing comes from others representing the whole business community spectrum.

The current regulation bill would set up a three member roadside advertising commission empowered to control roadside signs by zoning portions of the 12,000 mile state highway system after recommendations of the state highway department and the holding of public hearings in the districts affected by proposals.

Only Rural

Such controls would not be permitted within incorporated areas, or others not rural in character. The zoned sections would extend 660 feet from the edge of the road.

Permitted signs would be official signs or those concerning public places; for sale signs on property involved in each direction; signs advertising on-premises activities visible to traffic going in direction and located within 150 feet of the activity; one sign advertising essential services such as food, lodging, auto service, etc., visible to traffic in each direction if service is adjacent to highway and sign within 12 miles of service; directional signs for such services which are not located next to highway.

Some signs would be prohibited absolutely.

The state would also collect some revenue from the signboard industry. Permitted signs would be assessed one dollar for 50 square feet, two dollars for from 50 to 300 square feet, and one dollar for each additional 200 square feet. Non-conforming signs would be required to be removed within 60 days after next January 1.

Will reading books on mental health helps a person mobilize health cure you?

Probably not. More experts in kind of professional help he needs mental health than not feel that when he needs it. A book won't cure a toothache — why should you expect it to cure a heartache?

Does aging mean "letting go"? No. Professor Leo W. Simmons says that the secret of success for anyone facing a long life is to find a suitable place for himself in his society in which he can age with grace and usefulness. You can participate fully up to the very end, as so many shining examples of radiant older lives have proven.

Parents foot the bill when their teenagers marry.

"Whether parents like it or not, they must help the young couple financially" is the finding on one recent study of school-age marriages. These parents assumed such financial responsibilities for the young married couples as: providing them with a place to live, helping finance their trailer, furniture, car and even the groceries and spending money in some instances. Apparently, these young folks aren't as independent as they would like to appear.

Man Put on Probation for Auto Theft

OSHKOSH—Thomas L. Wirth, 25, Madison, was placed on probation to the State Department of Public Welfare for a year by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane. Wirth pleaded guilty of car theft Wednesday afternoon.

Wirth admitted taking a car belonging to Thomas Murphy, 305 Nicolet Blvd., Neenah, around midnight Tuesday.

The car had been parked near Doty Avenue, next to the Owl Tavern. The keys had been left in the glove compartment. The car was recovered at 2.10 a.m. Wednesday.

Neenah police spotted the car as Wirth turned off Wisconsin Avenue onto Walnut Street. When they arrived Wirth had parked the auto and was walking north on Walnut Street.

He said he stole the car because he was tired of walking.

The powerful, highspeed, delicately adjusted automobile of today would be impossible without the cushioning of safe dependable tires.

Supreme Court on the DuPont Case

Four of the nine members of the United States Supreme Court are of the opinion that the DuPont corporation must divest itself of its holdings of General Motors stock in order to protect the public from violation by the two corporations of the anti-trust laws. Three members of the court disagree with this view. They evidently believe that the ruling by Judge Walter LaBuy of the Federal District Court of Chicago in 1959 is insufficient public protection. Judge LaBuy's decision was that the DuPont corporation might continue to own the stock but could not vote it. Under that decision the voting rights were given to the common stockholders of the DuPont corporation exclusive of the shareholders in the DuPont family. Two supreme court justices have not made their opinions known. They declined to participate in the decision because they had had some connection with the case as attorneys before being named to the bench.

While the views of the four supreme court justices prevail their standing is uncertain because of the fact this case may be in court for a long time and even a trifling change in the personnel of the court may result in a reversal of the case.

When Judge LaBuy worked out his decision in 1959 he had broad powers from the supreme court to find a solution. There was nothing in the orders to him that required divestiture.

However, Justice Brennan in writing the present decision brushed aside the LaBuy proposal as ineffective. As for Judge LaBuy's statement that he was attempting to protect innocent stockholders from irreparable damage, Judge Brennan said adverse tax and market consequences cannot be considered all important in devising a remedy for a serious anti-trust violation. "Common sense tells us," he said, "that DuPont shareholders would favor DuPont's interest in voting the General Motors stock. This is the very thing the supreme court is trying to block."

Nevertheless, it is quite clear from the decision that if the DuPont corporation were to distribute the General Motors stock to its stockholders they would then have the right to vote the stock somewhat as they do under the LaBuy decision with two exceptions. One is that the big DuPont stockholders, members of the DuPont family, also would have the stock and the right to vote it which they do not have now. The other difference is that the DuPont stockholders would be out about a billion dollars which they would have to pay in taxes for this stock distribution under the present ruling. It is by no means certain, as Judge Brennan asserts, that these stockholders would all vote their General Motors stock in favor of DuPont. It is within reason to believe that many DuPont stockholders are also stockholders in a great many other corporations, some of which may be competitive with DuPont. How they would vote their stock is a matter of conjecture.

Justice Frankfurter in his dissenting opinion made a very good point. He said that Judge LaBuy was so certain that divestiture would "work great and unjustifiable loss on wholly innocent investors, that he considered a divestiture order beyond his discretionary power." Then he says if the supreme court wanted to order divestiture it should have done so back in 1957 when the court ruled four to two that the stock ownership violated the anti-trust law.

If anything is clear it is that the supreme court decision of 1957 agrees with the findings of four members of today's supreme court that stock ownership by DuPont violates the anti-trust law. But it is also clear that the remedy the court had in mind in 1957 is not the same as that laid down by the court decision last week.

Lawlessness in Alabama

The Governor of Alabama has outrageously protested the presence of Federal marshals who, with Alabama National Guard troops have restored order, at least temporarily, in his state. Law and order obviously come under the police power reserved to the states. But Gov. Patterson knows full well that the police power in Alabama had broken down not only because of violent racial tensions. The Governor himself was at fault.

There are arguments that the "Freedom Riders" were the real instigators of the riots because they were pushing something upon the South which a majority of the whites were not ready to receive. There now have been state bills introduced banning such trips.

But all this is begging the question. It is quite true that violence can be brought about through non-violent means. But the peace and law were broken by the gangs of white toughs using the segregation issue for their own sadistic purposes. The police of Alabama, rather than trying to keep the Freedom Riders from harm by escorting them out of the state — and thereby attempting to wash their hands of the problem — were duty bound to maintain order by keeping down the mobs. This may have been difficult; it was not impossible for a governor who had cleaned up the notorious Phenix City vice rings.

The violence in Alabama begins to make it appear that the charges of one law for the whites and one for the Negroes are all too true. As many northern cities are finding out, Negroes moving away from the South often do not seem ready for the responsibilities of citizenship but neither do a lot of the whites. The ignorance, hatred and prejudice based on fear of the so-called white trash is fearful and frightening to behold. It is continued and extended by discriminatory laws.

It is unfortunate that many southern political leaders do not realize that the failure of local authorities to maintain law, order and justice for all is the main reason why states' rights dwindle away. As the Beloit College Student Senate said in a resolution commending James Zwerg for his part in riding the busses, the happenings in Alabama were "a shocking display of violence and lawlessness."

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for May 30, 1861.

Washington, May 25, 1861 — The wrath of the Firemen Zouaves in consequence of the assassination of Col. Ellsworth is fearful. They threaten to burn Alexandria to the ground. A reconnoitering force of two regiments was sent in a westerly direction, from Alexandria, this morning. The men composing it took up the rails of the Alexandria and Richmond Railroad and took down the wires of the telegraph as they went along.

All advance troops were instructed to answer to challenges of rebel pickets — "Who goes there?" — and this: "The advance guard of the Grand Army of the United States!" This answer in all instances made the rebels beat a precipitate retreat.

The army will be at once engaged in constructing a fortified camp. Earthworks will be thrown up over batteries from a point opposite Georgetown, across Arlington Heights to Alexandria.

Col. Ellsworth's death is the only casualty thus far reported. Immense train loads of provisions, ammunition, wheel barrows, shovels and camp equipment continue to pass over the bridge. Another battery of six 12 pounders has just crossed over.

An agreement to appropriate $525,000,000 for the navy for the fiscal year beginning July 1 was reached at a meeting of the Senate and House Conference Committees. The appropriation, the largest in peace-time history, would provide for the construction of 12 destroyers, 6 submarines, and the continuance of work on 84 warships of varying types.

A revised estimate of the yield of the Senate Finance Committee's compromise tax plan placed the total of $560,000,000 or $56,000,000 short of the additional permanent revenue sought by President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Ed Koether, Mrs. Otto Tilly, Mrs. John Wagner, Mrs. Gust Tesch, Miss Ramona Roehl, Mrs. Harold Ferron, Mrs. J. Kromer and Mrs. Albert Roehl were representatives of the Missionary Society of Trinity English Lutheran Church at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Federation at Oshkosh.

E. E. Schmidt, Appleton, was guest speaker at the Menasha Lions Club luncheon.

Police are Commended

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I would like to write a small note of praise for the Appleton Police Dept. Being in business on the avenue I was in a position to observe their work last Saturday during the Rural Youth day parade. The men, I thought, did an excellent job under trying circumstances, and especially the patrolman that kept traffic moving on the corner of College and Orenda streets.

The Philosopher's Wife
Keeps The Wolf From The Door

BY ELIZABETH BANCROFT SCHLESINGER

Who today is familiar with the name of Abba May Alcott, who brought to fruition the careers of her husband, Bronson, and her daughter, Louisa May? For years she has remained a shadow.

Dire need drove Abba May Alcott into getting a job, because her philosopher-husband did not choose to work. But her misfortune created fortunate help for the "paupers" of Boston, and Mrs. Alcott, the mother of Louisa who wrote "Little Women", emerged as the country's first social worker. The story is told here by a woman writer who is the wife of one noted historian and the mother of another.

ewy figure, when actually she was a heroic woman of whom her friend Lydia Maria Child has written, "her fortitude, her energy, her conscientious discharge of duty, her daily and hourly self-sacrifice can never be duly appreciated."

Abigail May was the daughter of a prominent Boston merchant, in whose home a cultivated and liberal atmosphere prevailed. Books were valued possessions to be discussed and read over and over. While only boys had a systematic education then, "Abba" as she was always called, attended school conducted by neighborhood women and was able to live a year in the home of a minister in Duxbury, Mass., where she studied French, Latin, botany, and history.

Peddler, Teacher

When she was 26, she met Bronson Alcott, who had grown up with a meager education which he supplemented by reading everything he could lay his hands on. He had been a peddler in the South for a few years, and then returned to New England to teach.

After their marriage in 1830, they moved to Germantown, Pa., where Bronson taught in the Germantown Academy. Unfortunately, the school fell upon hard times, and back in Boston, Alcott opened an unusual school which appealed to the imagination of important Bostonians till his teaching of religion and the mysteries of childbirth scandalized them. When he enrolled a Negro child, parents speedily withdrew their offspring. The school closed in 1833, its failure inflicting a scar upon both Bronson and Abba that years could never efface.

At the suggestion of their friend, Ralph Waldo Emerson, they moved to Concord, and for the rest of their lives shuttled back and forth between Boston and Concord, except for several years in Walpole, N.H. Abba wrote in her diary in 1856, "This is the twenty-fourth time of moving. We've been married 26 years." Bronson, walking with his head in the clouds, lived on manna from heaven, untroubled by the cold and hungry path his family had to tread.

Hungry Experiment

If many of Alcott's theories are accepted principles of education today, they were too radical for his generation. People in Concord viewed his residence there with consternation. Franklin B. Sanborn wrote that "he was the target for much cheap wit and for some censure." But affection and respect for each other bound Abba and Bronson closely together, softening the harshness which financial need imposed upon them.

It must have required strong ties of love to bring the Alcotts through their ill-fated experiment in communal living at "Fruitlands". On a farm near Harvard, Mass., they joined with a few others in an experimental Utopia whose rules governed clothing as well as diet. Clad in ugly brown linen tunics and trousers thoroughly unsuitable to the climate, they refused to exploit nature, eliminating meat, butter, cheese, milk, and tea from their meals. They preferred "aspiring vegetables" that grew upward. The family was near starvation when they abandoned Fruitlands for a house nearby at Still River.

Grim Years

The next few years were grim. The burden of caring for the family fell on Mrs. Alcott, who kept the wolf at bay. "Mr. Alcott," his wife confided in her diary, "cannot bring himself to work for gain; but we have not yet learned to live without money or means."

A cousin, commenting on a visit to the Alcotts, wrote, "I did not dare to go to Concord without carrying tea and coffee and cayenne pepper — and a small piece of cooked meat, in case my wayward stomach should crave it." She had arrived in the evening and found the family "seated around their bread and water." She brought some clothing for the children, and Mr. Alcott remarked to his wife, "I told you that you need not be anxious about clothing for the children; you see it has come as I said."

This was the predicament when a group of philanthropic Boston women in 1843 asked Mrs. Alcott to be their City Missionary — a forerunner of the modern social worker. Charity in that era depended largely on Lady Bountifuls, but a new plan had recently divided the city into districts, with churches and volunteer groups assuming the responsibility of caring for the poor. It was one of these, the South End Friendly Society, that employed Mrs. Alcott.

Analyzes Poverty

Despite the fact that she had never worked outside her home, Abba at 49 slipped into her new job with ease. The family, then consisting of a husband and four children, relied almost entirely upon her efforts.

Her first suggestion to her employers was to establish a relief room where a basket filled with clothes and a purse with money, constantly replenished, would assist the "paupers." As to her compensation, she wrote the chairman, "I cannot support my family in the city for less than $500 per annum and to be free from care and anxiety ought to have $600." The waves of the Irish famine then washing the Atlantic coast deposited thousands of its victims upon the shores of Massachusetts. As Mrs. Alcott viewed the situation, "The Irish should be encouraged by the assurance if they are only steady and careful of their wages, they will have fine opportunities in this country for educating their children, and laying by a little for sickness or old age."

She thought deeply about the underlying reasons for poverty, and concluded that "incompetent wages for labor is the cause of much of the destitution and despair I find among one class. Want of employment, and enormous rents for comfortless places another cause, and the third and by far the largest part is a shiftless, hopeless poverty." Doubting the competence of the government in this field, she contended that "Politicians in their wisest economy fail to solve the mighty problems of Pauperism."

The relief room moved the next year to Washington St., where Mrs. Alcott announced she would there dispense help and find employment for those in need. In addition she proposed a sewing group and started an evening class where Negro adults could learn to read and write and make out their washing bills. These citizens, she reminded her committee, had been neglected by society. "To me," she admitted, "they are far more interesting than the God-invoking Irish."

One may well wonder what Bronson Alcott did in Boston while his wife was working. His diary reveals his daily schedule: "I have my early morning walk and into breakfast and manuscripts till the afternoon when comes Miss Littlehale and we walk Commonward and in the Mall for a good while."

His Thoughts

Quite smug about the importance of his thoughts, he was satisfied that while they "feed not my own family," they will serve as "an exchequer from whose drafts coming generations are to be fed and nourished."

Mrs. Alcott's patience often gave way, her temper frayed. Bronson's diary records that she quarreled with him "as a noble wife and proud mother may with a husband and father in her exasperated and wounded spirit, because the gold I persist in coming day by day . . . brought neither food nor shelter nor rain."

State Budget Tops Income by $60 Million

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The enactment of the state budget, the one compelling reason for the convening of the legislature in Madison in every second year, has been completed and an unusually tedious job it was.

There is a deceptive ease about state budget-making that is perhaps inevitable in the political circumstances that attend it, but which is unfortunate, nevertheless, for those who have some respect for the idea that accurate public information is an essential of the democratic process.

For months the dispatches from Madison have been dominated by the quarrels between the Democrats and the Republicans upon what is the proper level of state spending. Because the Democrats wanted more — it is a pretty good rule that the Democrats always want more — the impression has inevitably been created that the Republicans stood for a tight budget program, for economy and prudence, and a considerate regard for the taxpayer whose pockets must be invaded to finance this program.

What of the facts? One relevant fact is that in percentage terms the difference between the Democratic demands and the Republican decision is negligible.

The Democratic attacks have served to give the Republicans a reputation for thrift that they could not graciously claim on the record, upon their own initiative.

THE ILLUSION

It is difficult for legislators, who have been exposed to the peculiar atmosphere of the state-house for four or five months to remember, sometimes, but it may be wondered whether the taxpayer in North Freedom or Fish Creek will regard as negligently a spending program that overshoots the state treasury's income by about $60,000,000.

There may be some curiosity, too, about the reaction in the hinterlands to the claims for stubborn economy among budget-makers who have managed to make meaningful cuts from existing levels of spending in scarcely any agencies, while they have permitted substantial increases in dozens of cases.

Such misgivings perhaps would be even sharper if there was a general realization that this budget does not promise, even by implication, to be the end of the spending authorizations of the term. There will be appropriations outside this budget, of an extent that can only be guessed.

A word that was heard with tiresome repetitiveness during the unusually sterile debate this year was "adequate." Department should have "adequate" funds. University teachers should have "adequate" salaries. The word is useless. What is "adequate?" More precisely what is inadequate? Is a pay schedule that provides 12 per cent raises at two year intervals inadequate? What other class of citizens in Wisconsin can expect such boons?

PSC Continues to Veto Plans for Dam

Rights of Public to Enjoy Trout Stream Paramount, Group Rules

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Resistance of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission toward the impoundment of recreational streams for the purpose of creating new economic values in flowages and lakes is taking on the pattern of a policy. For the second time in a few weeks the commission has vetoed a plan by a recreation development group for the construction of a dam on a trout stream.

Rights of Public
The rights of the public to enjoy the trout stream are paramount, the commission ruled, and exceed the interest of the public or private groups in the use of newer recreational areas that might result from the stream impoundment.

The latest proposal involved the plan of a group of private citizens to dam Klawitter creek in Marquette county, which originates southwest of the village of Westfield and flows easterly into the Montello river.

The purpose would be the creation of a pool which would be ideal habitat for waterfowl, according to the promoters. They proposed to draw down the pool to plant duck feed in the spring season, then raise it to a normal expense of about 23 acres. In the fall the pond would be filled with a six foot head so as to provide a flooded area of about 80 acres for the benefit of hunters.

Not Compatible
But the commission ruled that "the creation and fluctuation of a shallow pool in Klawitter creek for game management purposes

Cites Need for More Target Ranges in State

Points to Rapidly Increasing Number Of Rifle Shooters

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The state needs many additional target ranges to satisfy the needs of the rapidly increasing numbers of rifle and other firearms enthusiasts. That's the view of Walter Zelinske, assistant chief warden of the state Conservation Department, who asked the members of the executive council of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress to encourage the development of such facilities in Wisconsin localities by civic groups including the rifle clubs and sportsmen's organizations.

Zelinske insisted that when a warden apprehends a man with a 30-30 rifle in the woods and the gun owner insists that he was out target shooting, the warden has a right to be suspicious. Too many deer can be poached by violators using target shooting as an excuse, he said. But he conceded that there is an enormously increasing interest in the use of firearms for target purposes, and said such pressure must be accommodated by the provision of shooting ranges that are recognized and labeled as to purpose.

The public safety will also require such accommodations, other enforcement officials told the Congress leaders.

Herbert VanderBloemen, Manitowoc County warden, said there is an increasing worry about the frequency of random target shooting by rifle owners in inhabited rural districts. If present conditions continue, the use of firearms in many districts will be outlawed by town or county board action during the next decade, he warned, to the detriment of the legitimate sportsman and gun lover.

Ask for Study of Ways To Control Wolf Boats

The Waupaca County unit of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress has asked the conservation department to make a study of the means for controlling the speed of boats and the size of motors used on boats on the Wolf River.

These Two Boys came home on a Sunday night last week with a real fish story. They got home late — 10 p.m. — and their parents were worried, but the boys had proof of where they'd been — a 35-pound, 51-inch muskie caught about 5:30 near the Menasha dam. Conservation Congress' Action, Boating Subject of These Letters

Editor, Post-Crescent:

To members of the Conservation Congress: Subject M-40 (Rifle permit regulation).

Being with you at the annual Conservation Congress meeting, and knowing how the group was possibly convinced by the WCD's representative, and that his proposals received nearly unanimous vote from the counties present and voting, except a few opposed especially and emphatically Outagamie. I ask: were you sincere in going regulation onto yourself instead of increasing the penalty on the poacher.

1) The M-40 is a psychological regulation. It is supposed to keep fear M-40's; but with the low number of arrests and convictions for rest, thus saving a deer's life. But you want this infringement on your freedom just to save a few deer lives?

2) The motion was made by a northern county to retain M-40. Does this mean anything to you?

3) Were you swooned by the WCD's proposals thinking that now, even though it is still in effect, they are going to be easier on us? For instance, did you notice how many loopholes still exist to allow the game warden to interpret the regulation as he wishes?

4) Have you realized that more than once there has been a low in around this area very long or has not checked the facts.

5) Whenever any river or lake is under federal navigation, any boat or any motor of any size is allowed on that river or lake. You mentioned that our highways are free for all, too, but tractors with lugs are prohibited, trucks are limited for weight and there are speed limits on all. Highways are man made and can have certain regulations and rules, and the state can limit the highway to certain classes of vehicles. Rivers and lakes are not man made and as long as the boaters and fishermen have some large boats too, buy the boat license and pay the personal property tax on their boats as they do, and observe the federal and state rules for proper and safe boating, they can be on any river or lake, and can't be on it.

6) Do you remember, before vote anyone mentioning heavier punishment for poaching? I don't and you vote to take on an easier-going regulation onto yourself instead of increasing the penalty on the poacher.

7) How did Mr. Zelinski get through to you? Did you sense as what he was saying was that men, who have some large boats too, buy the boat license and pay the personal property tax on their boats as they do, and observe the federal and state rules for proper and safe boating, they can be on any river or lake, and can't be on it.

8) Are you certain of the constitutionality of M-40? Remember, you may have voted for it.

9) Did you hear anyone request the permit method system be fully and completely explained in the game laws? In voting for your county, might you have any idea how many of your public fully understand or even know about the permit system? There are approximately 1,000,000 shooters in Wisconsin concerned some way with firearms. Have you realized what this would mean if everyone of them demanded a permit? I bet there would be a charge for, possibly a dollar to simplify things.

10) Do you suppose your decision was somewhat spiteful when the eyes went up like a royal cheer in favor of the motion made by a certain LaCrosse County man that read something like: "Should Bill 451-A be signed by the governor, that the Conservation Congress entertain a motion at the next meeting to recommend to the WCD that 22RF be illegal for small game. Childish, I'd say. This meeting is supposed to be run by adults, don't you agree?"

11) Do you remember how quickly the hall was clear? Were you running out of backdoor or didn't you come with any?

Trace Journey of 400,000 Pike Fry

Small Fish Released in Wolf River

Research biologists released 400,000 dyed walleye fry at Shiocton to follow their downstream migration in the Wolf River. The red and amber dyed fry were released at 3 p.m. on May 16. By 9:30 a.m. on May 18, the fry had reached Fremont a distance of 47 river miles. They had traveled the 47 miles in 43.5 hours.

Special fine mesh fry nets were used at selected points — Conley's Bar, Stephenville Bridge, Hortonville Bridge, New London, Northport, and Guh's Landing — to check abundance and progress of the fry. Once the fry are in the river, they are dependent upon the river's currents to carry them downstream since they are not able to swim about freely in the river.

Soon Spread Out

Although the fry were released all at one time, they soon spread out in the river. After fifteen miles in the river, a check at Hortonville showed that it took the entire group of fry over six hours to pass this point.

Some reasons for this study were to determine the length of time required for the fry to travel from spawning marshes to the downstream lakes with the help of the river's currents; to determine if the fry are able to reach the downstream lakes in sufficient numbers; to determine the effects of dams upon the walleye spawning and downstream migration of the fry; to determine if extensive management on walleye spawning marshes would ensure good survival every year; and to determine the effects and duration of the dyes used on the fry for future studies.

Chances Slim

Attempts to capture the dyed fry at Winnebago were unsuccessful since the river's current spreads out considerably as it enters Lake Poygan and the chance of catching these small fry over such an extended area is very slim.

The distance from Fremont to Lake Winnebago is 32 miles and there is good reason to believe that the fry could easily make this distance.

Small Game Bags Bigger in 1960, Says CD

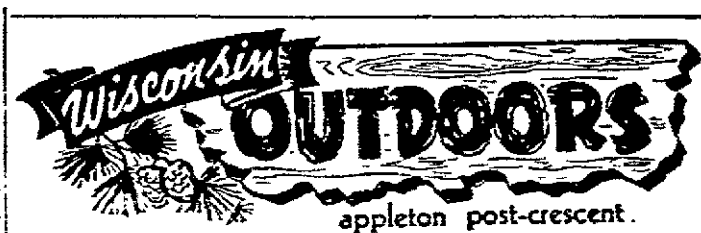

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Conservation Department said Friday that small game hunters collected bigger bags in the fall of 1960 than they did a year earlier.

The squirrel bag was fixed at 1,300,000, up about a half million. The cottontail rabbit kill was up about 50,000 to 484,000. About 61,600 snowshoe hare were shot, an increase of 13,000 and the jack-rabbit take reached 9,300, an increase of 3,000.

The winter trapping take also was higher, mostly because of the lack of snow.

The muskrat harvest was 153,000, an increase of nearly 120,000 over the 1959-60 season. About 11,142 beaver were taken, compared with 10,595 the previous year. The other bag was 342, up 105 over a year earlier.

The only decline was in mink, which dropped 2,650 to 15,850.

Tangle of Underbrush Protects Wily Trout In Northern Stream

Smith Creek Near Crivitz Offers Problems to Angler

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
CRIVITZ — Trout fishermen in central Wisconsin don't know how good they have it unless they have worked their way into the brush to fish a narrow northern stream for native speckled and brook trout.

For the most part, the streams in the central part of the state, including Waupaca, Waushara, Shawano and Portage Counties, are easily accessible from roads. Many have well worn paths for the fisherman to follow to the waters edge and most of them are wide enough for good wading and fly rod work.

Little Smith Creek, just outside the bustling tourist town, is just too late, is to inch your way side the opposite from a central area, the stream never get too close to the bank because the fish speak to the bank.

Crivitz people will admit Smith Creek is not fished much and it bait can be dropped over the side didn't take me long to figure out of the bank and left to float with why. I was told it would be the current for a short distance.

Go Back Again
Hooking the fish and landing it. Little Wolf, Embarrass and Crystal Rivers in this area. However, I was not told that it would cause of the many trees etc. there, be the next thing to impossible. is not much room to jerk the pole.

Smith Creek is not more than five feet wide in most places and many strikes are lost. Once a fish in quite a few spots it is less is hooked it goes on a rampage than that. It winds through a tangle of underbrush and thick, wet undergrowth about two miles north of the famed Peshigo River.

Using a regular fly rod on the stream is completely impossible. For one thing you cannot get down to the stream without getting a long rod tangled in innumerable twigs, branches and vines. Another reason is that the stream is too narrow to work a long rod and the undergrowth will not permit any great movement of the pole.

I used a telescope rod, closed down to its shortest length and still had trouble keeping it out of the trees.

Place Growth
In some places there is such a thick growth over Smith Creek that a fly or nightcrawler could not be worked into it. Undoubtedly there are some nice trout in these sanctuaries but I'm quite sure they are there to stay.

Braves Rip Dodgers Behind Spahn, 10-2

Thomas Hits 200th Homer Of Career

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves parlayed Warren Spahn's pitching, the wildness of Los Angeles pitchers, some speedy baserunning and clutch hitting. The result: one of their biggest scoring outputs of the season.

Spahn threw a seven-hitter and coasted to his fifth victory of the season Friday night as the Braves belted the Dodgers 10-2 before 10,613 hardy fans who braved a temperature which hit a low of 32 degrees at frigid County Stadium.

Spahn surrendered a run in the first inning on a bunt, a hump-back single to short center and an infield out and was tagged for another on three safeties in the seventh. But he was in command the rest of the way—thanks to four Milwaukee doubleplays.

Directed By Wyatt
The Braves, directed again by coach Whitlow Wyatt in the absence of flu-stricken manager Charlie Dressen, wasted little time in getting to Los Angeles. Stan Williams.

Milwaukee scored three runs in their half of the first as Frank Bolling drew the first of eight walks by Los Angeles pitching. Then successive singles by Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron and Frank Torre were good for two runs. Aaron raced to third and Torre to second on a double steal, setting the stage for Hank to score on an infield out.

The Braves scored twice in the third without a hit. Aaron was hit on the head by a pitch, but escaped injury because of his protective batting helmet. Hank then stole second before Adcock walked and Frank Thomas was hit by a pitch. Another walk and two wild pitches accounted for the runs before Los Angeles reliever Jim Golden got Lee Maye to foul to the catcher for the third out with the bases loaded.

A walk to Adcock and Thomas' fourth homer of the year—his second as a Brave and No. 200 of his career—provided two more runs in the fifth. Spahn doubled after two walks in the seventh for a pair of runs, while Aaron completed the scoring with a homer, his seventh, into the bleachers in left center in the eighth.

Spahn posted his 293rd National League victory in boosting his 1961 record to 5-3 and working his sixth complete game. Williams was charged with the loss, his third in six decisions.

Adcock suffered a twisted right shoulder in a first base collision in the top of the fifth and had to retire after bating in the inning.

Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews and the Dodgers' Maury Wills engage in a bit of shoving in the dust as they contest for possession of third base in the first inning of Friday night's game at County Stadium. Umpire Ken Burkhardt signalled Mathews out, but later changed his mind and ruled him safe. The Braves won, 10-2.

DePere Edges Bulldogs In Extra Innings, 5 to 3

Wins Sectional Opener, Meets Gresham in Finals

NEW LONDON — East De Pere High edged New London, 5-3, in an extra inning game that was spiced with rubeats and close plays Friday afternoon in the first round of WIAA sectional baseball tournament play.

De Pere put the game on ice in the top of the ninth with two runs. Gary Roffers reached base on an error by third baseman Mike Herres. A sacrifice put the runner on second. Ron Lasee struck out but went to first when the ball got past the catcher. The play also advanced Roffers to third. Jim Metzler walked to load the bases.

Second baseman Wayne Huettl fielded a smash by Jerry Daanen, but his throw to first was low, allowing two runs to score, ending the three-all tie.

De Pere scored the first of its runs in the second and added two in the third.

New London waited until the sixth to score its first two runs. Gary Herres was hit by a pitched ball. Sandy Hotschill struck out. Jim Winckler hit a triple to the 310-foot mark in right field scoring Herres. Winckler scored on a fielder's choice.

Ties The Score
New London tied the score at 3-all in the seventh when Pete Schlise led off with a triple and scored on a wild pitch. The Bulldogs managed to get two more men on base but were unable to bring them around.

Winning pitcher Ken Smits started the game but was relieved in the fifth by Jerry Daanen. Smits returned to the mound in the sixth after Daanen gave up two runs. Smits gave up four hits and one run and walked one. He struck out 14.

Jim Winckler, who went the distance for New London, gave up eight hits, walked two and struck out 10. In the sixth, Winckler retired the side on three pitches.

East DePere was to meet Gresham for the sectional championship this morning.

Gresham defeated Sturgeon Bay, 3-0, Friday afternoon.

Washington Hands Twins 4-3 Setback

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of pigeons. That's the way the Washington Senators and Los Angeles Angels were pegged when they started the season as the new entries in the expanded American League.

So who are the only two clubs to beat Frank Lary, the right-hander who leads the majors with seven victories for first-place Detroit? Yup, the Senators and the Angels.

That trimmed Detroit's lead to three games over idle Cleveland and boosted the Angels out of the cellar a half-game ahead of the Chicago White Sox.

Twins Lose 4-3
Washington won the only other game played in the AL, beating the old Senators, now the Minnesota Twins, 4-3. Rain and cold weather knocked out the other four low individual scores counted in team tabulations.

The Angels collected nine hits, off Lary, who struck out six, and twice came from behind before Ken Hunt singled and came home on Averill's double in the eighth.

Ryne Duren, relieving starter Ronne Kline after Rocky Colavito's two-run homer had tied it in the seventh, blanked the Tigers without a hit over the last 2-1-3 innings for his first victory in four decisions. Duren struck out Al Kaline and Colavito after putting the tying run on base with one out in the ninth.

Appleton High School won its fourth consecutive WIAA sectional golf championship Friday.

The Terrors compiled a team total of 321 strokes to beat runner-up Fond du Lac by 12 on a par-36 Green Lake's Tuscumbia course. Both AHS and Fondy will compete in the state meet next Friday at Lawsonia.

Other final team tallies in the Ripon sectional were: Ripon, 341; Mayville and Horicon, 343; Waubesa, 345; Oshkosh, 360; Portage, 366; Berlin, 367; and Beaver Dam, 403.

The co-medalists, with 78s, were Jon Kaufman, of Waupun, and Tom Jenz, Ripon. Jenz won a sudden-death playoff on the first hole.

John Manier (41-38) and Carl Graves (42-37) paced Appleton, with 78s. Other Terror scores were: Dennis Babb, 81 (42-39); Mark Meythaler, 82 (42-40); and Jeff Martin, 84 (42-42). Only the four low individual scores counted in team tabulations.

Today, the Terrors were to play a make-up quadrangular (against Manitowoc, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac) on the Reid Municipal course.

Bradley Orders Dismissal of Two Cagers

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley University has ordered the dismissal of two basketball players listed by the New York district attorney's office as having rejected bribe offers but failing to report them to authorities.

They are senior Alphonse Saunders and sophomore James (Tim) Robinson. Both are Chicago high school graduates.

The action touched off a demonstration at night by 500 students. Ed King, dean of men, was hanged in effigy and the dummy thrown on a huge bonfire. Later six police squad cars blocked off a section of downtown Peoria and broke up a motor cavalcade of 30 to 50 cars of shouting students.

A university source said the two players will be able to take part in next week's final examinations and will receive semester grades.

Herb Score Sent To San Diego By White Sox

Seeks to Shake His Wildness In Coast League

NEW YORK (AP) — Herb Score, once a million-dollar pitching ace, is back in the minors today, hopeful he can shake the wildness that has been a monkey on his back since he was all but knocked out of baseball four years ago.

The Chicago White Sox, stumbling along at the bottom of the American League, optioned the 27-year-old left-hander to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League Friday night.

"We had a long talk with Herb," said Manager Al Lopez, "and we told him we thought this would be the best thing for him. We feel he has to be somewhere where he can pitch every fourth day, someplace where if he gets into trouble, he can stay in and pitch himself out of it."

"We couldn't afford to let him do that up here."

Wants No Alibis

If Score has had one "beef" in the past couple of seasons it has been over the excuses sportswriters have made for him. "I appreciate what they're trying to do for me," he has said, "but I want no alibis. I don't deserve them. I'm just not pitching the way I used to."

The "alibis," as Score chose to call them, concerned, of course, his injury in 1957 — when he was pitching for Cleveland and was struck in the eye by a line drive by Gil McDougald of the Yankees. There was, at first, serious concern over whether he could retain sight in the eye, much less return to the mound.

Before that injury, Score had won 16 games and had led the AL with 245 strikeouts as a rookie in 1955. The following year he won 20 and led the league with five shutouts and 263 strikeouts. It was then that Boston offered a million dollars for Herb.

Stockbridge '9' Loses To Fondy in Tourney

Post-Crescent News Service

FOND DU LAC — Little Stockbridge High School lost its opener in the sectionals of the WIAA baseball tournament here Friday to Fond du Lac, 19-4, primarily on loose fielding.

Pitcher Louis Hernauer gave up seven runs in the first inning six of them unearned. He switched to left field in the second inning. Oshkosh earned a spot opposite Fond du Lac in the finals when Glenn Miller hurled a 4-hitter to stop Waupun 3-1.

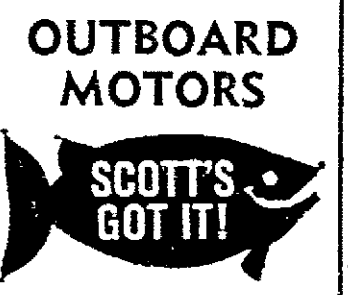

Hernauer retired the first two batters he faced before Fond du Lac second baseman Jerry Floyd's triple and third baseman Ken Wilderman's single started the hectic rally. Four errors, two wild pitches, a pair of walks and only three hits figured in the 7-run burst.

Fond du Lac added six more runs in the third off Jerry Franzen and scored three times each in the fourth and fifth innings. Wilderman had three hits and four runs batted in. Until the seventh, Stockbridge's only hit off pitchers Jim Kalk and Karl Schmidt was shortstop Gary Grimm's scratch single in the fifth inning. Kalk struck out nine in the first three frames and Schmidt came on in relief.

Dick Bertell's Throwing Is Bright Spot

Cub Catcher Foils 4 Giant Steal Attempts

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie catcher Dick Bertell is doing his best to give the lowly Chicago Cubs a shot in the arm.

His throwing ability is about the only bright spot in the club's gloomy National League start. It has won but 12 of 36 games.

The 25-year-old former captain of the Iowa State baseball team gave the league-leading San Francisco Giants a good look at his right arm Friday.

Signed in 1957, the 6-1, 200-pound fledgling, who made six different stops coming up through the Cubs' farm system after his bonus signing in 1957, threw with the speed and accuracy of a Gabby Hartnett, the last of the club's great catchers a decade ago.

Bertell foiled four theft attempts. He threw out speedy Willie Mays trying to steal second after a two-out single in the first inning. After doubling in the sixth, Mays made a second test of the Bertell arm and was cut down trying to swipe third.

The Giants still made two more attempts to run on Bertell. Chuck Hiller was called at second in the ninth, and Felipe Alou met the same fate at the same spot in the 10th.

The Cubs lost the game 3-2 in 13 innings but it could have been much worse if the base thievery had succeeded.

Stops 10 Attempts
Bertell now has quelled 10 stealing attempts and says the "number will grow as long as they attempt to run."

"I like to catch because I like to throw," adds the confident, aggressive Bertell who is bawling out "I've always been pretty accurate, too."

The only time he failed Friday was when he couldn't get the ball out of the pocket, and when I finally did, Cepeda was there and a throw would have been useless."

Warren Spahn Declares His 'Schedule' Is Holding Up

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee's Warren Spahn admitted with a smile "I was a little luckier than I thought I was, against the schedule." He was talking about his season record of 2-3, including 2-1 against the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-2 on Friday night as the West Coast temperature dipped to a frigid 32 degrees in County Stadium.

The 40-year-old great earned career victory No. 293 by stopping the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-2 on Friday night as the West Coast temperature dipped to a frigid 32 degrees in County Stadium.

In defeating the Dodgers for the second time this season Spahn matched his entire number of wins as compared with the losses against his jinx club in the years 1952 through 1960. He is 16-31 lifetime against the Dodgers, who are the only team with a winning record against him.

Old Adage, 'God Helps Those That Help Self,' Does Work

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 52 and weigh 190. My breast is large and very heavy. I have pains and burning in the left breast and under the arm. My doctor examined me, and says nothing is wrong — the weight is causing the trouble. He advised plastic surgery. What do you think?—Mrs. B. L."

every four weeks for a 'fasting blood sugar' test. Some friends of mine who have a child with diabetes say they take their youngster only once a year. "Which is better? Is diabetes supposed to be worse in young people? I am in my early 50's.—K. M."

The frequency of visits for a diabetic patient depends on several things: How well the individual case is under control is the big one, I'd say. If the patient is "brittle," or poorly controlled, visits should be often. When the patient is a child, which means that it is a severe type of the disease, I think, frankly, that a visit once a year is not enough. The child's diet has to be adjusted from time to time, and so does the amount of insulin, to cope with growth.

Since diabetes is the 10th most frequent cause of death, I can't feel that I'm wrong in saying that it's better to go to the doctor of ten. Once a year, or once in six months (which I'd prefer) may be all right for an adult with a stable case; often for a child, or for an adult with a "brittle" case.

Harm Baby

"Dear Dr. Molner: My 5-month-old son has been in a walker since he was 3½ months old. He goes every place in it, but some of our friends seem to think it will harm him in some way. He has perfect control. I would like to keep him out of it until he is older? He is not content just to sit and not move around.—Mrs. P."

He started lots younger than most infants, to be sure. But if he's old enough to want to do it, he's old enough for you to let him. (But of course make sure the basement door is shut, and be sure he can't get into things that would hurt him—like reaching a hot stove, hot water, detergents, stored in the kitchen, etc.)

"Dear Sir: I would like to donate my eyes to an eyebank, and whatever else is needed in the existing 'banks' when I die. Can you tell me with whom to get in touch? I understand that papers are involved.—Mrs. G. W."

Questions Diabetes

You're right. It is vital for you to have your wishes expressed in legal form, and also necessary that your nearest of kin be fully aware of your wishes, and in accord with them. An eye surgeon (perhaps at a medical school or major medical center) can help you make arrangements.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have diabetes and am forever being talked about because I go to my doctor

Menasha Police Changes Made to Curb Vandalism

MENASHA—Police Chief Peter P. Clark has announced two personnel deployment shifts to allow the force better to curb vandalism. One change is having the police motorcycle operate two shifts a day: from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. and 3 to 11 p. m. six days weekly.

The other is assignment of a police captain to plainclothes duty. Clark declined to say who has the assignment.

The motorcycle will be used for parking meter duty during the day. After dark it will patrol parks and other areas, where vandalism has occurred in recent months. Clark commented: "we are trying to improve police protection."

He noted the changes were made without adding men on the department.

ment, nor schooling for the children. . .

Her work as a city missionary ended about 1850. The Alcott fortunes were still low and soon afterward the family moved to Walpole, N.H., where Mr. Alcott was lecturing in the west, an agreeable work which he continued intermittently from 1853 until the end of his life. Abba's diary reveals his pleasure at his return, which "increases the desire to have all things comfortable and cosy. We must have warmer fires, meals more punctual, his presence seems to annihilate the selfishness and increase and intensify all winter comforts. The bread is lighter, the muffins warmer; there is a rainbow of simple joy flicking about our meanest occupations."

way was still dark and rough. Louisa's books for children, still popular today, and Bronson's "Conversations" were beginning to ease the pain.

After Mrs. Alcott's death in 1878, Bronson wrote with sadness after glancing through her diary: "These papers admit me as daily intimacy hardly did into the very soul of my companion, and my heart bleeds afresh with the memories of those days. . . Yet here are strokes of joy intermingled. . ."

Strong-minded, courageous, self-reliant, Abba May Alcott was indispensable to her family of rugged individualists whose "beliefs, tastes and aims," as Edward Emerson has said, differed so widely as seemingly to make domestic harmony impossible. It was Abba's determination coupled with deep-abiding love and respect for each other that kept the family united.

Some Bridge Players Never Have Any Luck

How well do you know the Unlucky Expert? He's a member of every bridge club, perhaps of even smaller groups. Don't look now, but you're standing close to a mirror. . .

The Unlucky Expert was first isolated for science by S. J. Simon in 1945, in his classic book, "Why You Lose at Bridge." "His was the first time spades had been bid. Of course you know what the Unlucky Expert meant. He wanted his partner to bid five no trump, which he would pass. He couldn't bid five no trump himself, because that would be part of the Blackwood Convention. But then, you're not an earnest young lady. Or perhaps you've been playing bridge for more than six months.

The Unlucky Expert is usually allowed to play his adventuresome contracts undoubted. That's because his opponents can't believe how unlucky the poor fellow is. If they doubled him, he might redouble! The redoubler asks for a takedown, of course. But you know how accidents happen. While we're on the subject, how's your own luck these days? Are your partners letting you down?

Unlucky Play

ed it out," the Unlucky Expert complained while the rubber was being scored. "I tried hard enough," East protested. "It was an absolute guess."

"Not at all," said the Unlucky Expert. "If I didn't have an ace, it didn't matter which suit you led. But if I did have an ace, it was surely the ace of hearts, not the ace of spades."

And West pointed out that he could have A-Q of hearts but not of spades since the queen of spades was in the dummy. Hence he might need a heart lead from his partner to get the most out of his cards, but he couldn't need a spade lead.

"Don't you see," West concluded, "if I'd had the ace of spades, I'd have cashed it before leading the fourth diamond." It was very well reasoned. Just unlucky that East was not an expert. In fact, if West had studied his partner as carefully as he have noticed that he was opposite one of the worst chuckleheads in the club.

But so was East. Our hero should have cashed the ace of hearts before leading the fourth diamond. The first rule of defense is to make sure of beating the contract.

bidding is perfect," Simon commented, "his play flawless. But one of his recent exploits: he never wins. All his partners let him down."

Simon shows the Unlucky Expert in action. His partner opens with one spade, and our hero has a very good hand — five good spades, five strong hearts, and through South. Declarer finessed A-K-x of diamonds. Unfortunately, he had no clubs at all.

Why this should be unfortunate may not be clear unless you know how often accidents happen to the Unlucky Expert. He bid his hand very scientifically in his attempt to get to seven hearts. But somehow or other he dropped in a contract of six clubs. South was ready to run nine tricks.

As so often happens, our hero's partner was not a scientist. He didn't understand what was going on, so he passed the first bid that seemed comfortable. Down seven at six clubs, with seven spades absolutely lay down!

Still With Us

We don't have to go back 16 years or read books to find the Unlucky Expert. He is still with us. In fact, with all the new bidding gadgets that have come along in the last few years, his tribe has increased more than ever. I don't know of any veterinarian who hasn't had this happen at least once. Occasionally we open up the animal again, but we're not always successful in finding the offending piece of tissue. Frequently hormone treatment is used, but this is not always successful. But, while the cat's feminine appeal may be a nuisance, I can assure you she won't have kittens. If the nuisance becomes too great, there is a spray available at your pet store which will repel the Toms.

Put To The Guess

East was now put to the guess. What should he lead after winning the fourth round of diamonds? Obviously a spade or a heart, but which?

Some of my readers will probably work out East's best return, particularly if they have been when the hand was played East Unlucky Expert. He is still with us. In fact, with all the new bidding gadgets that have come along in the last few years, his tribe has increased more than ever. If the nuisance becomes too great, there is a spray available at your pet store which will repel the Toms.

South put his hand down on the ed auction, with a Blackwood table with a grunt of relief. "Three spades and six club tricks," he claimed. It was a sketchy way to claim the correct response of five is the way people usually do it. The defenders didn't dispute the claim in any case. "You really should have work-

Old Flame's Wattage Increases If Husband Buys the Candles

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When youth as an excuse. He says they startled me into unconsciousness. I was 18, I fell madly in love with a fellow at work. We went inals, if they act like criminals, man admit that keeping house is steady for three years. I'm a very demonstrative person and made no secret of the fact that I was nuts about him. All he could say was "he thought I was a good kid."

After three years of Nothingsville, I gave up and started to date another fellow who was older and more settled. This guy was very outspoken about his love for me and we were married within the year.

Here's the problem. My old flame wants me to have coffee with him every day. Since we work in the same department there's no avoiding him. I must confess a spark of the old feeling still exists—and I get a lot of satisfaction out of hearing him say sweet things he wouldn't say when we were going together.

Could it be now that I'm married he sees me in a different light? If so, why? —Puzzlement

Dear Puzzlement: He sees you in a different light all right—and he likes this light much better because somebody else is paying the light bill.

Now that you are married and no longer a threat to his bachelorhood, he's relaxed and those sweet phrases come easy. Stop having coffee with this phony or you'll wind up with more trouble than you need.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother has been having a lot of trouble with his 17-year-old son. He has been arrested three times in the last 18 months.

Recently he got into something serious. Although he was able to prove he was not guilty of the charges, he was in the car with the boys who were.

His father has decided the boy is no good and that these toughs who get into serious trouble try

I have often secretly wished that I'd break a leg on a Saturday or Sunday so he'd have to take over completely—just for one day. But that wouldn't work because he'd probably call my mother.—Tired

Mrs. Kennedy Selects Gown of Paris Designer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said Friday Mrs. John F. Kennedy has bought a Paris gown.

It's a long white evening dress, beaded, with coat and was ordered by Mrs. Kennedy from Paris couturier Givenchy, Miss Pamela Turnure, the First Lady's press secretary, confirmed reports of the purchase in response to inquiries.

Miss Turnure said it was ordered from sketches about a month ago. Mrs. Kennedy has purchased Paris gowns before. Miss Turnure said, but she does not plan to wear this one on her forthcoming trip abroad with the President. No details of the dress were immediately available from the White House.

It will be "for her own use," Miss Turnure explained, indicating that Mrs. Kennedy probably does not plan to wear the dress on official occasions.

Mrs. Kennedy has named New York designer Oleg Cassini as her exclusive designer, but has said she might supplement his work with that of other designers from time to time. So far, this is the first indication that Mrs. Kennedy is buying elsewhere.

Our Children

Freedom, Self Dignity Hard-Earned Ends

BY ANGELO PATRI

Memorial Day has been set apart that we may not forget that all the freedom and peace we enjoy these days, the freedom that allows us to choose our way, say aloud what we think, be ourselves as free souls, has been bought and paid for by men's lives. That "last full measure of devotion" that Abraham Lincoln so well understood and gave in his turn.

We who never shouldered a gun in battle, who never had to leave home and friends and all the beloved familiar things of home, who never knew the loneliness of a boy stationed in a foreign land for time on end, are, unless strongly reminded, too likely to forget that this was suffered by men and women that we might be safe and comfortable at home.

Set Aside Day

Because of this, people who can hold sudsy wash water and knew and had cause to remember, set this day of remembrance for time on end, are, unless strongly reminded, too likely to forget that this was suffered by men and women that we might be safe and comfortable at home.

age paid to the heroes may inspire the coming generation to value what they have been given at such a price and be ready, in their turn, to protect and defend it with their lives if necessary.

What our youth, and indeed, many elders, do not seem to realize is that freedom cannot be stored as we store surplus grain. It is an intangible spiritual quality like the breath of God and as important to human life. It must be protected, nourished, defended, and often bought again by sacrifice of life and property. These are the precious gifts we cling to with might and main but again and again men and women have been called on to offer on the altar of sacrifice that free men might walk the earth. This is what we must teach our boys and girls in song and story and Memorial Day offers the opportunity once again.

Teach Children

I, for one, believe firmly in teaching the children the words of "The Star Spangled Banner," "America," "America the Beautiful" and having them sung in assembly often. I think that old soldiers should be invited to talk to the children about their experiences just as we used to listen to a Grand Army Man tell about the War between the States. We knew it as the Civil War, but we KNEW it. Only by keeping alive the history of our land, its love of freedom, and its fight for it, can we hope to keep the flame of patriotism alive in our people. Memorial Day and every day should carry the message our history tells. Freedom is a spiritual thing purchased by personal devotion.

Mrs. Jean McCarthy, widow of Republican Sen. Joseph McCarthy, announced yesterday in Washington that she and G. Joseph Minetti, 53, a widower, plan to be married. She is 36. Minetti, a Brooklyn lawyer, is a member of Civil Aeronautics Board. He is a Democrat.

PSC Approves Hike in Rates For Electricity

Details of Cost Changes Not Yet Made Available

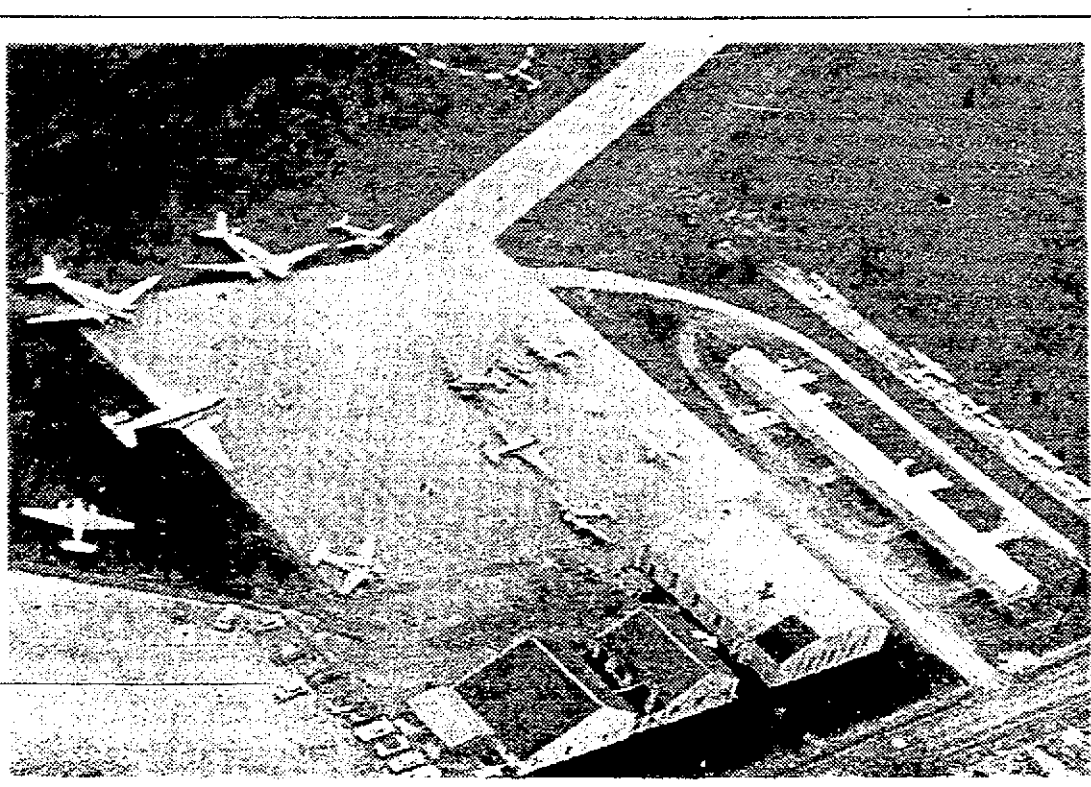

The Public Service Commission of Wisconsin yesterday authorized Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. to increase its electric rates. It is the first electric rate increase the utility has been authorized in 11 years. The commission's order raises rates a total of $1,066,250 a year, more than half of which will go for federal and state taxes. The approved increase was $200,930 less than the amount the power company had requested.

In its order setting new rates for residential, commercial and farm subscribers, the commission said the increase would provide a 6.15 per cent return on Wisconsin retail operations. It called the percentage "fair and reasonable." The rate of return under the past rate schedules was estimated at 4.5 per cent.

Heating Cost Down The utility is unable to quote details of the new rates because the complete order has not been received from the commission. The new rates, however, will reduce the cost for about 100 homeowners who heat with electricity in the Appleton area. An extra charge for electric heating was eliminated at the request of the utility.

Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. serves Appleton, Neenah, Kimberly, and portions of 12 Wisconsin counties, including parts of Brown, Calumet, Florence, Forest, Marinette, Oconto, Outagamie, Shawano, Vilas, Waupaca, Waushara, and Winnebago. The company also serves industrial firms in Menasha.

Board Drops Program in Effect 30 Years

Dismissed time for religious instruction, which has been allowed by Appleton Public schools in varying forms for about 30 years, will be discontinued, the board of education decided Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Walter Heil, appointed to the board last week, voted "no" to the proposal to dismiss fifth and sixth graders an hour early each Monday for 25 weeks next school year. The six veteran board members split evenly on the question, as they have on other occasions within the last year.

Prepared Statement "While I sympathize with the problems of the churches in their educational programs, I believe that the word of God has the power to live and has the power to stand and walk on its own feet," Mrs. Heil said. "It does not need a crutch in the form of support from time which the taxpayer public pays for public education."

Lawmen Interrupt Beer Party for AHS Juniors at Oneida Gravel Pit

The carousing of 200 youthful beer party goers from Appleton was cut short Friday night by Outagamie County law enforcement officers.

Boys and girls of Appleton Senior High School's junior class poured into a gravel pit in the Town of Oneida in cars laden with beer for their annual party, disorderly conduct and drinking beer as minors.

The Outagamie County Sheriff's Department had received "tips" on the location and time of the party a week in advance. At first, only Outagamie County Patrolman Calvin Spicer was there. About 1 1/2 hours later three other law enforcement officers arrived.

Checks Cars Spicer said he plans to bring five of the youths into juvenile court. One youth on a servi-car packed with beer tried to escape from Spicer by going around his squad car through the ditch and speeding away with his lights out. He ran into the ditch and was caught. Both Frenzl and Spicer said some of the youths were loud and abusive.

The youths were still arriving at the gravel pit when the officers left about 1 a.m. today.

On Prejudice: 'Love Will Overcome It'

Freedom Rider James Zwerg Feels 'Loving, Forgiving' Toward Mob That Gave Him Beating

BY DAVID BROOKER

Post-Crescent City Editor

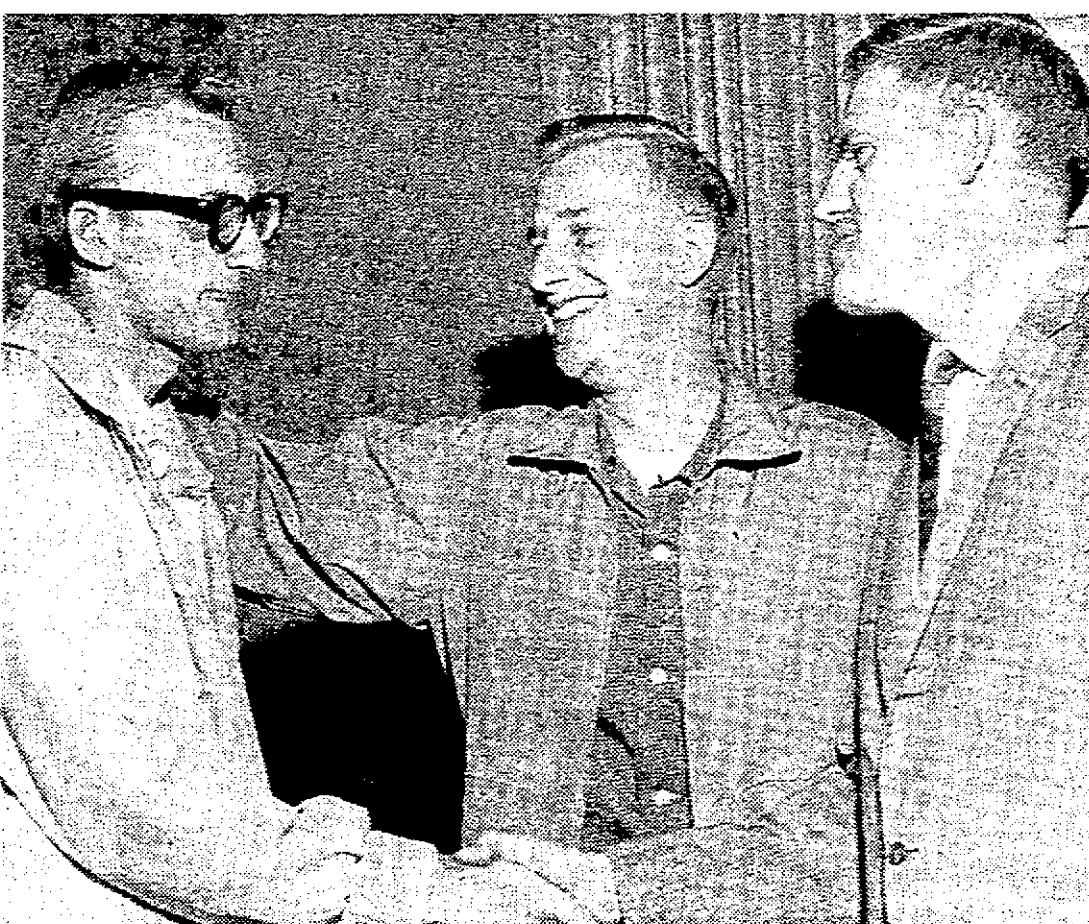

"I watched them go after the photographer and knew I might be next. I started praying."

James Zwerg, 21, Appleton pre-theological student, still feels "loving, forgiving" toward a mob of white people who beat him into unconsciousness on the pavement.

Unsigned Message From Birmingham

Mayor Clarence Mitchell has received a letter from Birmingham, Ala., containing the front page of the Birmingham News with a banner headline, "Wild Montgomery Mob Beats 'Riders,' Newsmen." The page contained a picture of James Zwerg, Appleton, beaten and bloody.

An unsigned note read: "Keep such mongrels in your own town."

James Zwerg, 21, left, severely beaten by a white mob in Montgomery, Ala., last Saturday when he was riding an integrated bus, talks with his brother, Charles, 24, and the Rev. Richard Schroeder, associate pastor of First Congregational Church, after his return to Appleton Friday afternoon. Zwerg spent five days in a Montgomery hospital recovering from injuries. He plans to work in Appleton this summer.

They're only a minority. The majority of southerners do not condone violence. They recognize that integration is coming and are preparing to accept it."

Zwerg said he has received about 50 letters and telegrams, all of them sympathetic. "I got the first flowers I ever received in my life from two white women in Montgomery. The card said, 'We want you to know that not all the people in Montgomery are like those who met you at the station.'"

Major Influence Zwerg said his Negro roommate at Beloit College, where he is a junior, was a major factor in his developing interest in integration and other problems involving the Negro. He asked to become an exchange student at Fisk University, a school about the size of Lawrence College. It has two regular and nine white, exchange students. The rest are Negroes. The faculty is mixed. "I wanted to see what it was like to be a minority," Zwerg explains. "And I was interested in seeing how they brought about integration."

City Tense Zwerg decided to take the Freedom Ride only a couple of days before the bus left Nashville. Most of the students on it were from the south. Three of the 21—Zwerg and two girls—were white.

Second School Exception OK'd

Little Chute Bill Precedent Noted In State Senate

MADISON — With a Little Chute - sponsored bill as a precedent, the Wisconsin assembly has voted for the second time this year to make an exception to the law which requires unorganized territory to be attached to an operating high school district by July of next year.

Assemblymen in an overwhelming vote backed the appeal of Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi to make an exemption for the benefit of the Town of Presque Isle, once the symbol of our democracy in Vilas County, where high school students are more than 20 miles removed from an operating school district and attend a school across the state in Michigan on a tuition basis. His bill, which now goes to avoid confusing, not to say fust, to the senate, would permit that ing, what the Constitution sought arrangement to continue."

Ask Drivers to Use Care Near Road Projects

The 1961 highway construction season has begun, and the Wisconsin State Patrol today urged motorists to exercise special caution when driving past construction or maintenance crews on the highway.

Capt. L. V. Versnik, commander of the State Patrol's Fox River Valley District, Fond du Lac, pointed out that despite numerous warning signs and flagmen around construction projects, some drivers still speed past the workmen at close to normal speeds. Each year there are highway construction workers killed and injured by thoughtless motorists, he said.

"These men are working to provide better roads for the motoring public," the district commander said. "Drivers can make their jobs easier and safer by obeying warning signs and flagmen's directions, and proceeding with caution past the work area."

College 'Pioneers' Initiate New Sport On Waupaca River

Wide-Beamed, Flat-Bottomed Skiffs Serve Well for Float

BY DICK McDANIEL/
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — Floating down a fast stream in a light skiff is a sporting activity that has much to offer, a group of Lawrence College students learned on a 12-mile trek down the Waupaca River.

Wide-Beamed, Flat-Bottom Skiffs served as vehicles for a company of Lawrence College students on a jaunt down the Waupaca River the day after the Junior Prom. From the left, with each skiff carrying a couple, the trip started at the Waupaca Conservation League landing; the company made a pretty picture paddling down the river and the exercise worked up a good appetite for, from the left, Jack Smuckler, Milwaukee; Stephanie Giese, Dundee, Ill.; Dave Telleon, Cambridge, Ill.; Bob Suszycki, Mauston, and Linda Nicholson and Carl Berghult, both of Chicago. Below, after lunch was time for relaxation in the sun for some and for some horseplay for, from the left, Dave Fellman, Whitefish Bay; Marilyn Wormly, Rockford, Ill.; Bill Kalke, Stevens Point, and Marsha Dunlap, Randolph, N. H.

Trek Capt. A. C. Denney, Lawrence director of physical education and recreation, planned the trip.

L. E. Nelson, owner of a Taylor Lake boat livery, designed and built the wide-beam skiffs. Thanks to the wide beam and the comparative flat bottoms, the Lawrence men and women made the trip without a dunking.

Coach Gene Davis, who with his wife, Ann, were the chaperones, was not as fortunate. Using the family canoe, Coach Davis spilled into the cold swift, shallow waters of the Waupaca River on a short test trip before the skiffs were launched.

Bar License Appeal Filed In Menasha

MENASHA—The Gay 90's tavern license, denied last week by the Common Council, again is being sought by the present holders, Wayne and Betty Jane Wolf, and by the owners of the building, at 10 Tayco St., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Schavet.

Aldermen Thursday night decided to meet at 7 p.m. next Thursday with the Wolfs, Schavets and their attorneys.

The council, on recommendation of its health and license committee, denied the Wolfs' request for a new license and gave the license to Lenz-Gazdecki Post 152, American Legion.

Remains of Saint Returned to Rome

ROME (AP)—The remains of St. Gregory VII, one of the great popes of the Roman Catholic Church, were brought back to Rome after a nine century absence. The remains will be placed in a new church to be built in Rome Pope Gregory, who decreed this year.

Menasha Editor Has His First Book Published

MENASHA — James Auer, news editor of the Twin City News Record, has just had his first book published. Titled "The Spirit Is Willing," the book is intended to form a complete one-man show.

Auer was also the author of the play "City of Light," produced last winter by the Attie Theater.

The Menasha newspaperman has specialized in the performance of mental magic for the last 10 years. His book is published by the Ireland Magic Co.

Auer is currently filming the activities of the Menasha Historical Society and this summer will make a motion picture in conjunction with the Winnebago County Association for Mental Health.

Although many such treks have been staged before by others, this was a pioneering movement for the collegians. The 19 prospected that next year's spring river trip will attract at least 40.

The only drawback this year was the timing. The students claimed the trip was a bit too strenuous for the day after the Junior Prom.

"It's a lot of fun, but a lot of work," Howard Sumner, Home-wood, Ill., said.

"I developed some new muscles — some I never knew I had," joined in Robert Suszycki, Mauston.

Mel Bayer, Neenah, and Sara Volz, Madison, were in the lead boat until an overland portage.

"The portage was supposed to be a short-cut," Bayer explained, "but it didn't work out."

"We carried the boat for about a block and when we reached the stream, we were behind the rest of the gang," Miss Volz added.

Nature offered a full array of mudhens that balked at being disturbed and noisily spoke out against the intrusion. They tried to keep in front of the flotilla but finally gave up and flew away.

Other objectors were the stork-like herons that are starting to nest along the river. The long-legged fliers loudly protested the invasion.

"What about those big fish we saw," asked one of the co-eds. "They must have been trout," she added, although her escort with a quick wink identified the aquatic dweller as a "sucker."

Probably one of the most welcome parts of the journey was the noon stop at the Paul Hahn farm. The farm couple allowed the voyagers to use a part of the pasture for a picnic lunch.

Denney directed the chartered bus down Harrington Road and built several fires to have hot coffee and coals for the hot dog roast waiting for the paddlers.

The couples dashed through the lunch and then stretched out to sun themselves on blankets along the river bank.

Although the breeze was a little raw, the sun was warming and the students were a bit reluctant to push on to the next bridge where the skiffs were to be moored.

The boats were launched at the Waupaca Conservation League property on Tomorrow River. The first half-mile of the trip was on this swift stream before entering the Waupaca River.

Making the trip were David Telleon, Judy Johnson, Bill Kalve, Kay Nelson, Douglas Roberts, Bob Suszycki, Harry Demorest, Lynn Peckman, Dave Fellman, Marilyn Wormley, Martha Dunlap, Jack Smuckler, Stephanie Giese, Hap Sumner, Margaret Fraish, Carl Berghult, Linda Nicholson, Mel Bayer and Sara Volz.

A group of Neenah High School German Club members initiated this type of outing on the Crystal River. The group included Bob Voster, Dick Austin, Lee Veaser, Tom Krubecky, Dagmar Jaehning, Marcia Huppler, Carol Yeager and Ann Kruska, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Jachnig, chaperones, and Douglas Pearson, Neenah High School instructor and club adviser.

PROTECTION AGAINST FINANCIAL LOSS

In case of loss of your home or business by fire or other peril, insurance provides the funds for its replacement. In case of auto accident, your coverage takes care of the Medical, Hospital bills and loss of time of the injured and in the event of death provides substantial settlement for the surviving dependents.

In a very real sense, therefore, insurance is an economic and social service. But it is more than that, it is also a protection against depletion of your hard earned cash and other savings when you would have to dig into to replace your destroyed property or the funds you might have to provide in the event of an accident. Thus you can protect what you own through a modest annual premium.

Low Scale of Pay Violate Own Ethical Standards for Churches

BY LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Many churches are skinflint employers. They violate their own ethical teachings by exploiting the people who work for them—not only ministers, but also secretaries, janitors and other employees.

That is the conclusion—perhaps it should be called the confession—of a group of church leaders who took part in a recent consultation on the economic practices of America's churches.

The consultation, first of its kind, was sponsored by the National Council of Churches. Representatives of 16 leading Protestant denominations participated. The discussions were private, but the consensus of the meeting has been published in a little booklet which is now being distributed to churches throughout the nation for consideration.

Submit Surveys

The conferees began with the sound premise that churches should practice what they preach. Their frequent pleas for application of Christian principles to economic life will have a hollow ring unless they set an example of ethical behavior in the management of their own business and financial affairs. And ethical behavior, as the churches have often pointed out, includes paying your employees a fair wage.

Surveys submitted to the consultation showed that the cash salaries of Protestant ministers average about $4,500 a year for a 60 to 80 hour work week. The basic salary is supplemented, in most cases, by housing and auto-allowances and a variety of small fees and gratuities which add up, on the average, to less than $1,500 a year.

But the minister's real take-home pay is much smaller than these figures indicate. He drives, on average, 1,000 miles a month on church business, but his auto allowance usually covers only a small fraction of the expense this entails. So he has to use a substantial part of his salary—often as much as one-fourth of it—to meet car costs.

Moreover, community expectations enforce upon a minister a standard of living he can ill afford. He must dress well. His parsonage is often pre-empted for did urge all churches to pay meetings of church groups, and their non-organized employees, must be reasonably well furnished, such as secretaries and sextons, ed. He is expected to give generously to worthy causes as well as to needy individuals who apply type of work.

The result of these financial pressures is plain in one survey finding: Two-thirds of all ministers are in debt. Most of those who have managed to stay out of the red have done so only because their wives have taken jobs to help support the family.

More Fortunate

For all their troubles, pastors are the most fortunate employees of churches. Data presented to the consultation showed that there is usually a very wide gap between the salary of the pastor and that of any other professional employee—such as an assistant minister, or director of religious education—which a church may retain. The latter frequently receive $3,500 a year or less.

Janitors and sextons employed full-time by churches are often paid below-standard wages, with the average compensation in the neighborhood of $2,500 a year. Secretaries and other office workers are paid an average of $2,800 a year—considerably less than the prevailing rate for similar jobs in private business.

Not Specific

Participants in the consultation did not attempt to set specific dollar minimums for fair compensation of church employees. But they

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Southern Ladies Inspired Memorial Day when they strewed flowers on the graves of both Union and Confederate dead in 1863, easing the bitterness of the Civil War. Northerners at first glorified Union victory, but their hearts mellowed: "The thought could not but come to us that there were graves lying southward above which bent a grief as tender and sacred as our own. Invisibly we dropped unseen flowers upon these mounds," said Thomas Aldrich. The ceremonies at Gettysburg became a celebration of unity: "The Union has become not merely a physical union of States," Herbert Hoover once said, "but rather a spiritual union in common ideals of our people." Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "It was an inspired prophet of the South who said: 'My brethren, if we know one another, we will love one another' . . . We are all brothers now in a new understanding."

Dear folks:
 We put an ad in the paper
 to sell out Easter rabbits.
 We got lots of calls and the first man who called took them and paid us each 75¢.
 We used the KIDS
 KOLUM in the APPLE-
 TON POST-CRESCENT.
 Boy! It's swell and FREE!

Dear Ellen and Tommys

Thank you for writing us such an interesting letter telling us of the wonderful success you had in selling your two rabbits after advertising their sale in the KIDS' KOLUM section in the classified pages of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

You both may be interested in knowing that hundreds of boys and girls placed over two thousand ads in the KIDS' KOLUM, with most of these boys and girls having the success that you did.

Once again, it was very nice of both of you to take the time to write and tell us about your success.
 Perhaps next year you will help us tell many more boys and girls about the KIDS' KOLUM so that they, too, will have the chance to make use of it.

I hope you both have a happy summer.

Cordially,

Mel Parsons
